

MARCONI RECALLED TO TESTIFY TODAY

HEAD OF WIRELESS COMPANY TOOK STAND AGAIN IN SENATE INQUIRY.

CORRECTS STATEMENT

Says He Sent Message to Carpathia to Transmit News Why Disgives Would Not Be Allowed.

Washington, April 29.—Endeavoring to further repudiate any intimations that he had sought in any way to suppress or delay news of the sinking of the Titanic, Mr. Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, appeared today for a third time before the senate committee of inquiry into the disaster.

Mr. Marconi had discovered after leaving Washington last week that he had sent a message to the operator of the steamship Carpathia urging him to send news of the disaster to the wireless station at Gloucester, Mass., or to vessels of the U. S. navy.

He declared that when he was examined by the committee before he had forgotten about the message. Mr. Marconi also produced copies of many other messages which passed between the Marconi office and the Carpathia in an endeavor to get definite information of the wreck and the survivors.

Mr. Marconi was excused by the committee thanked him for the aid he had given.

S. M. Smith, chief engineer of the American Marconi company also testified explaining what had actually happened in sending messages to the Carpathia and telling her not to stop at any place in the Atlantic.

He said he had made an arrangement with a New York paper for him to sell their personal stories and had sent the message to the "boys" informing them of that fact.

Mr. Marconi, head of the Marconi company, was recalled to the witness stand when the senatorial inquiry into the Titanic disaster was resumed today. When Mr. Marconi was recalled to the stand last Saturday Smith asked him if he had sent any message to the Carpathia and he had said no.

"I would like to correct the statement that I had not sent any message to the Carpathia," said Mr. Marconi today. "On my return to New York I found I had sent one message. I immediately wrote a letter to the senator, enclosing the message." The message follows:

April 10, 12:00 A. M. To Carpathia, wireless Marconi station, Gloucester, Mass. Send the following immediately by wireless to the Carpathia: "Wire news of disaster immediately to Gloucester, or to naval vessels. If this is impossible ask captain to give reasons why not allowed to be transmitted." (Signed) GIULIO MARCONI.

Mr. Marconi also read a copy of the message as it was actually transmitted to the Carpathia on April 11, from Gloucester. "Wire news of disaster immediately to Gloucester, or to naval vessels. If this is impossible ask captain to give reasons why not allowed to be transmitted." (Signed) GIULIO MARCONI.

Mr. Marconi said he received no reply and he believed his office likewise received no answer. He said he had talked with the Carpathia operator, on the board the Carpathia, and that the latter said he had received the message.

"Did he give or did you ask his reasons for not answering?" asked Senator Smith.

"No," answered the witness.

"The difference in the code used by the Marconi operators and that employed by the United States cruiser Chester," said Mr. Marconi, "rendered almost impossible the transmission of messages between the Carpathia and the Marconi."

"Did you not infer that the failure of the Carpathia operators to communicate with other ships or with shore to give the story of the ship of the Carpathia was influenced by the hope of reward in the shape of money for exclusive matter held for news papers?"

"No, I do not think so," said the witness. "They did not know there was any reward for them."

Senator Smith interrupted that the case of Jack Binns, the Republic operator, gave the Carpathia operators a fair idea of what they might expect.

"I would like to know," the senator continued, "whether from the developments of this inquiry you do not feel it is incumbent upon you to discourage the practice of operators selling stories of big news events, such as this disaster?"

"Certainly, I am entirely in favor of discouraging the practice and naturally give very great weight to the opinion expressed by the chairman of this committee," said Mr. Marconi.

As to Wireless.

A still more searching inquiry into the wireless apparatus employed on board ocean going ships is planned for today by the senate committee investigating the Titanic disaster. It has announced its intention to question at length with a view to the making of legislation which will give the operation of the wireless apparatus on board vessels leaving American ports into the hands of the government.

Are Underpaid.

The testimony thus far accepted has disclosed that the wireless operators are underpaid, are forced to work hours far too long and virtually are independent of any authority. Chief Engineer Binns of the American Marconi Telegraph Co., arrived from New York today under the subpoena of the committee.

IS NO INDICATION OF A WARLIKE ACT

Navy Department Denies That Transport Was Accompanied by Torpedo Boat Destroyers.

Washington, April 29.—Today the navy and navy departments both denied that the army transport Hurd, now enroute to the west coast of Mexico to pick up American refugees, was to be accompanied by the torpedo boat destroyers Perry and Proble. The two vessels, which left San Diego yesterday, were not under orders from Washington, but are operating under direction of the commander in chief of the torpedo boat flotilla with headquarters at San Francisco and in, so far as is known, are not enroute to Mexico. The Hurd will stop at San Diego Tuesday to take on board General G. M. Gurney, deputy consul-general at Mexico City who has been dispatched to Los Angeles to establish a consular agency there. He will disembark at Toluca, Mexico, and proceed to Los Angeles. No American remains at those places he will proceed with the Hurd to the other west coast ports.

Although it is admitted at both the state and war departments that the Hurd was shipped to collect men it is explained they were taken merely as a disciplinary action. It was pointed out that the Hurd in her cruise around the coast, would be likely to pick up Americans of all classes and it was believed to be highly desirable to have soldiers aboard to preserve order on the vessel.

Washington, April 29.—The torpedo boat destroyers Perry and Proble which slipped out of San Diego harbor last night are under orders to intercept the gunboat Yorktown by wireless and tell her not to stop at any Mexican port for coal. In view of conditions prevailing in Mexico, it is not desired to have an American gunboat drop in at any of the coast cities.

MAY CONFINE WORK TO A SINGLE WEEK

Measures to be Passed at Special Session Have Been Adopted Already by Administration Leaders.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., April 29.—Every measure possible to expedite business in the special session of the legislature opening tomorrow afternoon has been adopted in advance by the administration leaders, and if the members cooperate in the plan for an early adjournment it is possible that Gov. McFarland's desire to confine the work to a single week may be fulfilled. The first steps to this end were taken two weeks ago at a conference between Gov. McFarland, Lieut. Gov. Thomas Morris and Speaker Charles A. Ingram. Here the preliminary plans were fully developed in order to secure speedy action. If possible, upon the matters covered by the governor's call for the session.

The presiding officers of the two houses reviewed with the governor all the subjects included in the call and to expedite the preliminary work of the session designated the committee to which the bills will be allotted. All these bills have been numbered and are being printed, and will be upon the desks of the members upon their arrival tomorrow.

Resolutions are being prepared to continue the full organization of both houses, and upon their adoption and the reading of the governor's message hearings will immediately be begun on those bills introduced in accordance with the official call.

Speaker Ingram, when questioned as to whether or not legislation will be confined to bills prepared in accordance with the governor's message, said that there is no rule which prohibits a member from introducing any bill which may come within the purview of the special call, but that to secure an early adjournment he believed the members of both houses would co-operate generally to confine the matters to be considered as closely as possible to the questions directly raised by the governor.

At the request of the recent conference between the governor and the presiding officers, the committee of waterworks and sewerage recently to consider the waterworks bill and that for adding Black River Falls and Portage. This finance committee has prepared three bills for introduction, aggregating appropriations of about $130,000 for Black River Falls. That for the Portage levee calls for an appropriation for temporary repairs and the appointment of a committee to devise some permanent plan for improvement of the river banks to guard against overflow, and the charging of the expense of such improvement to the property owners protected or benefited.

The special session will open at 3:00 p. m.

G. O. P. FACTIONS FIGHT FOR CONTROL OF MASSACHUSETTS

Campaign Hottest Bay State Has Seen in Years—Presidential Preference Primaries To-Morrow.

Boston, Mass., April 29.—After one of the hottest political campaigns Massachusetts has seen in years, the state-wide presidential preference primary will be held tomorrow. The primaries will be confined to the selection of delegates who will represent the state in the coming national conventions of the Republican and Democratic parties. The names of Taft, Roosevelt and La Follette will appear on the Republican ballot. On the Democratic ballot will appear the names of Wilson and Clark. Governor Foss will withdraw his name from the ballot, though he still remains a receptive candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and is expected to receive the support of the Massachusetts delegates when the first ballot is taken at the Baltimore convention. Tomorrow's primaries will determine who is to have the support of Massachusetts when it becomes apparent that Governor Foss has no chance for the nomination.

As early as last November astute politicians predicted that Massachusetts would be an interesting politically this year as some of the other states that have been known in the past as doubtful. In verification of this prediction it is only necessary to point to the fact that both President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt have paid three visits each to the Bay State since the contest between the two began in earnest.

Governed by the re-election of Governor Foss and the defeat of the regular Republican candidate last fall the Progressive Republicans determined months ago to make a hard fight in Massachusetts this year. At first they hoped for nothing more than to prevent a national delegation being sent to the national convention for President Taft. But developments of the past two months have so encouraged the Progressives that the leaders will be disappointed if they do not capture the entire delegation for Roosevelt at tomorrow's primaries.

Since the Massachusetts primaries are not complicated with local fights of any kind they will offer a test of sentiment different from any that has gone before. It is a straightforward contest between Taft and Roosevelt, on the Republican side, and not a struggle of county office and not a fight for the recall. They will not even be indicative of sentiment affecting the governorship, or national issues, for that matter, for the state constitution is abolished under the new primary law and the Massachusetts delegates to Chicago and Baltimore will not be governed even by a platform.

If Colonel Roosevelt succeeds in carrying Massachusetts it will mean, in the opinion of his managers, that there will be no chance to check his triumphal march toward the nomination. As the situation stands, the Taft people feel comparatively safe, but at the same time they realize the moral effect of a Roosevelt victory in Massachusetts. They think that if Roosevelt carries the state the delegates from southern states, always an uncertain quantity, will very likely tip over to the Roosevelt bandwagon and create trouble, if not disaster at Chicago.

While the situation in Massachusetts is not so crucial for the Democratic candidates, both Speaker Clark and Governor Foss are anxious to get the Massachusetts delegates to the Baltimore convention. They think the campaign got under way several weeks ago and has gathered great momentum. The Clark managers express themselves absolutely confident that the speaker will defeat Wilson in Massachusetts by a three-to-one vote. While they are not making any definite predictions as to the outcome, the Wilson managers appear here. They say that Governor Wilson here they have taken nothing for granted and have sent some of their strongest campaigners into the state during the past week.

The democrats will first seek to put the house bill through intact.

HARVESTER COMPANY DISSOLUTION SUIT

Violation of Civil Law Will be Charged in Suit to be Filed at Minneapolis Tuesday.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Washington, April 29.—A civil suit seeking the dissolution of the International Harvester Company under the Sherman law will be filed in Minneapolis tomorrow. This is the culmination of an investigation extending over five years.

During the past five months Attorney General Clegg and his assistants have made strenuous efforts to bring about a plan of disintegration which would meet the ends of the law. Their endeavors were futile and the problem will be brought on to the courts.

The one insurmountable obstacle was the refusal of the Harvester company to separate the McCormick and Deering Harvester Machine companies which are subsidiaries. In any plan of dissolution "the government" of the Harvester company, which is a consolidated trust as it is called, must be divided into two parts, one of which would be the McCormick and Deering company, and the other the Harvester company.

Under these conditions the attorney general refused to consent to any plan of disintegration which held the two companies as one.

HIT AT SOCIALISTS BY A NON-PARTISAN ELECTION MEASURE

Milwaukee Delegation to Introduce Bill Calculated to Defeat Victor Berger.

(Special to the Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., April 29.—It is now certain that two non-partisan election bills will be introduced at the special session of the legislature which opens tomorrow. The bills will provide for non-partisan elections in cities of the first class and the second for the same system in counties of 250,000 or over, applying to Milwaukee city and county respectively. They will be offered by Assemblyman Ethel C. Storn of Milwaukee. It is understood the preparation of the bills is practically completed.

There is a large delegation from Milwaukee will descend upon the legislature to endeavor to secure their passage is probable. Both bills will be vigorously opposed by the socialists.

The county bill is presumably in the interest of securing the defeat of Victor Berger for re-election to congress and to make it impossible for the socialists to add another member to the congressional delegation. The passage of this bill would also enable the non-partisans, it is figured, to turn the socialists out of the county offices.

There is doubt as to whether the wording of the governor's bill will admit of the introduction and consideration of these bills. Speaker Charles A. Ingram, it is understood, is of the opinion that a reasonable interpretation of the language of the call will not exclude the introduction of the bills, and unless the assembly overrules his judgment in the matter it is very probable they will be received.

No small importance attaches to the probable political effects following non-partisan elections. In the recent city election in Milwaukee a combination of the two old parties overthrew the socialists by several thousand votes. Specific authority of law for non-partisan elections was lacking, and the proposed legislation is intended to legalize and strengthen the power of non-partisan organizations. In the recent election the union of the two old parties was effected by party leaders, whereas the purpose of the two non-partisan bills will be to permit the general participation of the public in the selection of candidates.

Advocates of the non-partisan plan declare that the recent success of the non-partisan movement in Milwaukee is a signal tribute to the feasibility of the proposed enactment. There are others, who, while favoring the legislation, say the program of socialists for which the session was called, and that inasmuch as the next regular session of the legislature will intervene before another Milwaukee city election the fulfillment of party commitments at this time is apparent.

Under the non-partisan plan, party labels are abandoned. This means that whether a republican, a democrat or a socialist be elected to congress he must go designated as a non-partisan and loses his party identity. This and other features of the plan are provoking much serious discussion and the whole subject will probably operate against as early an adjournment as the leaders have desired to accomplish.

SENATOR BURKE PROPOSES WEIGHT LAW AMENDMENT

(Special to the Gazette.)

Green Bay, Wis., April 29.—Senator Timothy Burke of this city, has a plan which he believes will overcome the objections that have been raised to the weights and measures law and he will recommend it at the special session of the legislature tomorrow.

WIRELESS SURGERY LATEST INNOVATION

Man Suffering From Injury Told by Surgeon Miles Away How to Amputate.

(By Associated Press.)

New Orleans, April 29.—How a laborer on Swan Island, a lonely wireless station on the Gulf, suffered a crushed foot, how the wireless operator communicated with a ship 420 miles away, raised the surgeon and got him to explain to the operator the way to amputate the foot; then how the operator's assistant performed the operation, is a story told by the manager of a big shipping firm today. New Orleans describes it as "Surgery by wireless."

On Swan Island is a wireless station, one of the links in the chain to the topic. When a laborer in a train accident suffered a crushed foot, the wireless operator decided an operation was imperative, and having no medical books at hand and no one in the wireless station had ever backed at a follow being before the operator had an "inspiration," he called on a ship passing 420 miles below in the Caribbean sea. The situation was explained to the ship's surgeon, and detail by detail the surgeon explained just how the amputation should be handled. After the artery had been tied and the wound dressed, the patient recovered his senses and insisted on pressing the wireless key to express thanks. At the last account he was getting well.

TWO CANDIDATES IN THE OLD BAY STATE THROWING MUCH MUD

Final Swing Around the Circle Before Tuesday's Primaries.

(By Associated Press.)

Boston, Mass., April 29.—An episode unique in American politics took place in Massachusetts today with former President Roosevelt and President Taft following the same track and making final speeches before the presidential primary in this state. About the time Colonel Roosevelt left Boston for the north circuit, the president entered the state at Attleboro and took up the trail along which Colonel Roosevelt journeyed on Saturday.

At the beginning today Colonel Roosevelt was about thirty miles ahead of the President and it was expected that when he left the state President Taft would be concluding his address at Lowell and the most strenuous campaign ever waged in the Bay state would be wound up.

Supporters of Senator La Follette, Governor Champ Clark and Speaker Champ Clark were active and considerable literature and final instructions to political lieutenants were sent out.

President Taft delivered an address from a platform erected back of the railway station at Attleboro, and a throng that blocked a city square listened to him. Hundreds filled the windows of the nearby factory buildings and trees and telegraph poles were weighted down with boys. The President made no reference to Colonel Roosevelt.

He declared that the three years of the present administration had been progressive years and he denied anyone to show a record of more beneficial legislation accomplished in the same length of time.

"One thing the Payne tariff bill did not do," said the President. "It did not injure any industry in Attleboro for the reason that the administration has done well by you. You ought to do well by it." "We'll do it to you, Bill," yelled someone in the crowd.

In conclusion the President said his administration had been responsible for much legislation to protect the laboring man.

During the second speech of the day the President continued his appeal for the support of the laboring people and made his first attack of the day upon Col. Roosevelt.

He said Col. Roosevelt had misrepresented his speech in misstated the President's speeches and misstated the ability of the people to govern themselves.

"I am in favor of government by the people," said the President, and the crowd yelled in approval.

"I naturally am interested in the present condition of the United States," he continued, "but I have also a considerable amount of interest in the next president, and I am here to suggest that it might be well to make them one. When you get a new man that has done reasonably well do you think it wise to change just for the purpose of a change?"

"Do you have to take one whose chief claim to election now seems to be the separation of the people of the United States into classes? Now it is said I distressed the people of the United States with a respect higher and deeper than anyone who goes about the country insisting that the people can never make a mistake."

When Colonel Roosevelt left this statement regarding the Harvester trust suit, he made plans at once to issue a reply defending his position. The Colonel dispatched a telegram to George H. Cortelyou and Charles J. Mahoney, asking them to telegraph to him immediately what they remembered of the case.

Colonel Roosevelt said he would defer his reply to Taft if possible until he heard from Mr. Cortelyou and Mr. Mahoney, but that at any event he would leave later in the day a written statement maintaining that he was right in all essential details in what he said. Large crowds greeted him at Lynn and Salem.

At the latter city the Colonel spoke at the public square near the railway station. He appealed to his audience to stand by him in the present contest.

TO CUT DOWN HOURS OF MAIL CARRIERS

Mail Collections in City Will be Limited on Sundays to Boxes in Business Section.

In order to cut down the Sunday working time of the carriers as much as possible, the postoffice department has notified Postmaster C. L. Valentino to discontinue after next Sunday, May 5, collection of mail by the carriers in the residence sections of the city. Very little mail is picked up by the carriers from the boxes in the residence parts of the city, and the working time of the carriers will be cut down, under the new order of affairs, from four hours to one hour. In the business section of the city, however, the mail will be collected as formerly, including the hotels, depots, city hall and boxes in the business portion of the town. On the west side of the river mail will be collected as far west on Milwaukee street as the Schaller & McKoy Lumber company; east on Milwaukee street as far as division street; south on South Main street as far as Court street; and north on North Main street as far as Prospect Ave. Early this week new time cards will be placed in all the mail boxes about the city. The cards, which show the time of collection daily, in the morning, afternoon and on holidays, have been put up in the business section, and will be put up in other parts of Janesville this week.

CITY'S WELFARE IS IMPORTANT MATTER

Are You Interested in Civic Improvement?—What Does It Mean? Go to the Library and Read up.

Just at this time is the opportune moment to look up this vital subject. The clubs are taking an active interest in the city's welfare and are anxious that everyone give heed to these problems. In order to have some idea of what it all means, just glance over the following titles, and this will give a broad general outlook. All of the articles mentioned can be found in the Janesville Public Library. The complete list with the volume and page number is found posted on the bulletin board in the main Reading Room of the library. If you can not locate the magazine, ask the desk attendants and they will gladly aid you in securing the desired resource. The titles are: "Awakening of the Cities," "Polyglot Campaign for a Spotless Town," "Junior Civic League Experiment," "Municipal Spring House Cleaning," "Disposal of Garbage in Various Cities," "Now Process of Sewage Disposal," "Right Idea for Cities," "Improvement of Living Conditions," "Cleaning of American Cities," "Our Cities as Civic Improvement," "Our Cities as They Are," and "They Should Be." "What Is Civic Improvement?" "Civic Improvement Accomplished in Civic Improvement," "The Playground Movement," "Sanitation," "Better Housing Conditions."

CLOSING ORDINANCE GENERALLY OBEYED

No Arrests Made on First Sunday Since Chief of Police Announced Enforcement—Screens Down.

The Sunday closing ordinance was generally obeyed by Janesville bar-room proprietors yesterday, the first Sunday since Chief of Police Appleby served notice on them that the ordinance would be rigidly enforced. The majority of them had their screens removed and curtains up showing their intention to comply with the spirit as well as the letter of the law. A few left their screens in place, indicating their intention to evade the ordinance if the opportunity offered. No arrests for violations were made yesterday, and there were no arrests for drunkenness. As an indication of how tight the lid was clamped in Janesville it might be noted that last Sunday Bellott tipplers were coming in large numbers to this city, but that yesterday a good number from Janesville took the interurban cars to convenient bar-rooms between the cities. The passage of an anti-screen ordinance, which is now being considered by the council will permit of a more rigid enforcement of the Sunday closing law than is now possible.

MISS LATHROP WILL WORK FOR CHILDREN

Some Duties Which Chicago Woman Who Spoke Here Will Have in New Position.

Miss Julia C. Lathrop of Chicago, who gave such a masterful address at the Presbyterian church in this city a week ago under the auspices of the local equal suffrage organization, will be in charge of a national campaign for the welfare of the country's children. Miss Lathrop has been appointed chief of the newly established children's bureau under the department of commerce and labor and is the first woman appointed to the head of a federal bureau.

The children's bureau act was introduced first in the senate by Senator Borah of Idaho, and in the house by Representative Peters of Massachusetts. According to the act the bureau is empowered:

"To investigate and report on all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life, and especially the question of infant mortality, the birth rate, orphanage, juvenile courts, desertion, dangerous occupations, accidents and diseases of children, employment and legislation affecting children in the several states and territories."

It has been pointed out that thousands of dollars have been spent by the federal government in the study of agricultural subjects relating to scientific study of the growth and production of plants and animals while practically nothing has been done for the benefit of the children, who will be the future citizens of the land.

"The magnitude of the work which will be in charge of Miss Lathrop can readily be guessed. Conditions of the children who are employed in numerous occupations in every section of the country, conditions in the congested tenement districts, education, and safeguards against the many dangers which threaten child life, are among the important problems. Following are some of the questions which the children's bureau hopes to solve:

"How many blind children are there? Why are they blind? How can blindness be prevented? How are they being educated?"

"How are dependent children of weak mind being fitted for life? To what training do they most readily respond?"

"How many illegitimate children are there? What is being done for their care and development?"

"What occupations are most hazardous for children? How many are left orphans by avoidable accidents to their parents? How many are injured in their work?"

"How much illiteracy is there? Where is it? What are its causes and how may it be eradicated?"

"What laws are needed to protect children against crime? Against accident? Against moral delinquency?"

"How many children are employed in the different industries?"

"What is the ultimate effect of an industry upon the children engaged in it?"

"How many children are there? Where is it? What are its causes and how may it be eradicated?"

"What laws are needed to protect children against crime? Against accident? Against moral delinquency?"

LINK-AND-PIN CHICAGO SOCIALIST DISCUSSES LAYOFF

Radical Chicago Paper Prints Article About Layoff of 6,000 Men in Chicago Without Warning.

An article printed in the Chicago Daily Socialist last Friday finds considerable fault with the management of the Northwestern railroad in the matter of laying off its men. In the article it spoke of the 40th Avenue incident as follows: More than 6,000 shopmen employed in the Northwestern railroad yards at North Fortieth Avenue and West Kinzie street, Chicago, were thrown out of work today without warning when Superintendent Quayle notified the foreman that the shops would be closed down. Notices were posted Thursday that the shops would close Friday, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday but none of them stated what would be done Wednesday.

"This is only an attempt of the Northwestern to intimidate the men in preparation for the general strike of the railroad employees in the west this summer," said an official of the Northwestern Machinists' Union No. 378. The railroad and shopmen are getting in readiness for the greatest strike in the history of the United States. The Northwestern hopes by laying off its men now to discourage them from walking out."

The article went on to say that the strike would be begun within the next four weeks without doubt, and to obtain the methods of the road mentioned concerning the employees. It also mentioned the fact that six locomotives had been repaired and sent west presumably to the Union Pacific which would go to show that the C. & N. W. was working with the Harriman lines, against the employees.

How much truth there is in this article is not known and local unionists are ignorant of any threatened strike although they do realize that the conduct of the Fortieth Avenue men were entirely disregarded in closing down the shops. A federation meeting of all the roads but one west of Chicago held a meeting in Omaha a short time ago and it is thought that things of importance in connection with this trouble were discussed at that time. Developments will be watched with a great deal of interest by local employees if the Socialist proves to be true.

IN THE BAY STATE.

Never before in the history of a presidential campaign has the sight of two aspirants for the nomination for the same office been seen traveling through the same territory on the same day, each denouncing the other as a rascal and a failure. It remained for Theodore Roosevelt, former president, to start a campaign of vilification against the man whom he placed in office four years ago—William H. Taft. The old bay state is the scene of this latest phase of political activity and the country at large awaits the results of tomorrow's vote to see what the verdict of the man who has studied the question at close range thinks of the affair. Roosevelt has made his charges most sweeping while the president has taken pains to deny certain allegations with a vehemence that was hitherto an unknown qualification of his. Instead of the old Taftian idea of the office seeking the man the present political struggle appears to be a case of the man seeking the office in a most strenuous manner. While the vote tomorrow in Massachusetts will not settle the nomination at the republican national convention, it will have its influence on future state conventions in states where there is no primary to permit the individual voters to express their personal opinion. It is a sad spectacle that two such men as Taft and Roosevelt should be forced to stand before the people, like war-holding politicians, and carry public favor. It belittles the dignity of the office they seek and the public is becoming tired of the warlike demonstration of the would-be dictator, Roosevelt, who has made such a condition possible. Roosevelt has made some statements that have been flatly contradicted by his opponents and by the records, still he persists in continuing his campaign of abuse, seeking his own personal gain. It is to be hoped that the bay state will remain loyal to traditions and true republicanism and give Mr. Taft a handsome endorsement.

SUNDAY OBSERVANCE.

Observance of the law requiring the closing of certain places of business promptly at eleven each week night and all day Sunday, has been observed for the most part rigidly by those subject to the order. The commission made no mistake in issuing this order and instructing the chief of police to enforce it. The majority of the citizens approve of it and will back the commission, the chief and the city attorney in their enforcement of the ruling. The general tone on the streets Sunday was most noticeable and the court records this morning showed but one offender and he was picked up Saturday night.

CLEANING UP CITY.

It is essential not only to clean up the city, but also to keep it clean. The health officer and the street commissioners on both sides of the river will do their share, but it is up to the individual property-owner to attend to the over-crowded sidewalks. It is a movement in the right direction and one which should have the support most generally of all classes of citizens.

THE SCOUT MOVEMENT.

The determination by the Scout Commissioners to raise a fund of $250 and employ a scoutmaster who will devote all his time during the months of July and August to the boy members of the organization, should meet with the hearty financial support of citizens generally who are interested in the welfare of the growing generation of young men. The subscription blanks have been left at both the Gazette and Recorder offices where donations can be received and business and professional men will also be visited personally by members of the commission in the endeavor to raise the sum necessary. It is planned to purchase some necessary equipment for camping to be used by the boys, but the fundamental system of the entire organization, self-support and self-sustaining principles of the Boy Scouts will not be lost sight of. It is a grand movement in the right direction and citizens should be glad to contribute to the good cause.

ANOTHER APPEAL.

The body of the late Edward Lawrence has not yet been recovered and the fund for the aid of the widow and orphaned sons has not yet been closed. Further contributions are earnestly solicited. Leave your money with H. L. McNamara or at the Gazette office and help swell the total amount needed to aid this family through the trying years that will follow until the boys are old enough to be self-supporting.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Tuesday the state legislature meets in extra session. Janesville business men are most anxious to discover if anything is going to be done to alleviate the state from the unfortunate laws which have been placed on the statute books by former reformers who sought only popular vote and used the socialist doctrine. It is a useless waste of state money to continue to be hoped the session will be as short as possible.

A HUMAN DERELICT.

An emaciated old man dropped dead on Canal street this morning. There was no money in his pocket, shabby clothes, but he was evidently not a drinking man. He could not be identified. The body was taken to a morgue. —Chicago Newspaper.

Six lines of nonpareil type. Life is so cruel to some! Nature is so careful of the type and so heedless of the individual, and the big city is so heartless.

The submerging of this old human wreck, worn and waterlogged, makes scarce a ripple on the wide waters. Who was he?

The recording angel alone knows. He lived perhaps much as you and I have lived. There was a happy childhood, and he knew joy and sorrow and love and regret, prospered and failed, worked and saved, made and lost, until the day came when he was alone, friendless and weak and falling.

I ask you: Were you ever a poor boy in a great city? Men hurry on intent upon their own. Piled tier upon tier in the great commercial palaces are the abundant masses of swollen fortunes. Happy shoppers fill the great stores. Stated men and women roll luxuriously in costly carriages, while you—

Your head is dizzy as you peer over the tops of a bottomless pit. Behind those plate glass windows are heaped huge pyramids of food, while you are faint with hunger. Here is a crushing some of the world's cruelty.

But to be thus—and old! There is the alternative—to beg or steal. If you can squeeze back your pride and beg few will stop to listen. If you steal they will put you in an iron cell.

Sympathy? Charity? The city is too busy. It does not know. There are so many frauds. The city does not understand nor discriminate.

And so the "miserables" go gradually down, down, down, to that lowest plane of life where outer verge is starvation or suicide or—

Unless some tender human heart shall help what shall become of these? Nature will not help nor commerce nor the angels from the skies.

Let us open our eyes and hearts lest some of the frail, deserving human beings go down before our eyes.

PRESS COMMENT.

Seep the Smudge. —In making Madison attractive, as well as healthy, an important step is the improvement of the form of it.

which consists in huge clouds of very slightly digested coal. The chief ornament of this city is the capital which the state is erecting at the expense of many millions of dollars. Its clean white columns and artistic pediments will some day be soiled and dingy if, as this city develops, an anti-smoke ordinance is not enforced here. Too many of our industrial chimneys are now allowed to belch forth great clouds of beam-renting smoke.

Anti-smoke ordinances, enforced with varying degrees of rigor and compliance, exist in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Springfield, Massachusetts and Springfield, Illinois; Brooklyn, Syracuse, Auburn, St. Louis, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Washington, Rochester, Grand Rapids, Wilmington, Providence, Denver, Chicago, Boston, Buffalo, Detroit, Minneapolis, Toledo, Birmingham, Reading, and Montreal, Hamilton, and Toronto, Canada. As a some of these cities contain the dirtiest ozone in the whole known world, an ordinance against smoke may be destructive of any quality save force, but some places have actually accomplished enough to have accumulated information which ought to be of value to the rest. We have too beautiful a city to soil. Let us have a good anti-smoke ordinance and let us have it enforced.

Kill the Grouch. Antigo Journal.—Appleton will soon have established a reputation for itself as a chronic gloomer. It has been after the Northwestern railway company for some time to improve the train service. Now it says it is going to complain to the United States government unless there is better service in getting the mail from the depot to the postoffice. If Appleton isn't satisfied Antigo would be willing to let the railroad company send that "twelve by fifteen" wagon that we have up here down there. That might help some.

Those Clean-Up Days. Fond du Lac Reporter.—Cities throughout the state are having "clean up" days. So far no day has been set apart for that purpose in Fond du Lac, but it is to be hoped that everyone will remove the refuse from their property, rake the lawns and repair the walks and fences as part of their Arbor Day activities this year.

As a Result. Chicago Inter-Ocean Girl Scouts must learn how to wash a baby, bake a loaf of bread, build a coal fire and darn a sock, to say nothing of being able to find their way about in the woods and cure snake bites. It will not be many years before the ranks are depleted by former Boy Scouts looking for wives.

ORDERS TO ASSESS AT FULL VALUATION CAUSE DISCUSSION

County Assessors in Session at Court House Hear Instructions Read by F. A. Taylor, Supervisor.

Rock county assessors in session at the court house today engaged in a heated discussion as to the merits of the order of the state tax commission in assessing property at its true value.

F. A. Taylor, income tax assessor and supervisor of assessment for Rock county who issued the call for the meeting, addressed the assessors this afternoon on the matter of instructions. He read from the orders sent out by the state tax commission and allowed time for remarks and questions from the assessors present.

The order has been issued by the commission that the property in the state shall be assessed this year at its true value. Mr. Taylor declared that it was up to Rock county to do as instructed and to obey the law. He pointed out the ease with which the commission might call for a reassessment as was recently shown in the case of Janesville.

Mr. Taylor referred to a case in Walworth county where a man stated that no assessor had seen his property for three years. "Is it a fact that you do not view the property?" asked Mr. Taylor. "That you merely copy the assessment rolls?" Assessing property is like involving goods and should be done with the same care and accuracy.

"This raised something like a storm of protest from the assessors who declared they always were on the ground to see the property. They objected to the assessment at full valuation, however, and said their instructions last year called for only eighty per cent."

"It would double the tax needed to make the assessment," said one man; "and we wouldn't have a friend left in our townships. It will create a feeling against the lawmakers and this state will go democratic sure as the world."

Other problems with reference as to how to determine the exact valuation, the part of the equalization boards, the board of review, and the relation of the assessors to their town boards with regard to the payment for assessors' services and the time devoted to the work were considered.

T. A. Adams of the state tax commission will address the assessors at the city hall tonight on the income tax.

WHEELER CASE MAY BE CAUSE OF A NEW SUIT

Judge Luck's Decision Denied Divorce on Grounds of Insufficient Testimony.

It appears that there is more behind the action for divorce which was brought by Mrs. Emma J. Wheeler from her husband, Morris S. Wheeler, which was denied by Judge Luck on Friday last, than at first appeared and it is intimated that papers in another suit will be filed shortly which it is alleged will explain the failure of the present action. Some time ago Judge Luck gave the custody of the infant child of the couple into the custody of the father and immediately the plaintiff's attorney asked the judge to call in another judge to hear the divorce action. This was done and Judge Luck of the 15th district presided at the trial which was held Friday. Mrs. Wheeler was the most damaging witness to her own case and Judge Luck denied the application for a divorce and advised the woman to return and live with her husband and child, the child being left in the custody of the father. The defendant in the action was not called upon to testify and the motion of his attorneys that the case be nonsuited was rendered by the court on the testimony for the plaintiff which failed to make out a case sufficient to warrant a divorce.

REGULAR SESSION OF COUNCIL TOMORROW

First to Be Held by New Administration Since Its Organization Two Weeks Ago.

A regular session of the council, the first to be held by the new city administration since its organization two weeks ago, will be held at the city hall at two o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Mayor Fathers and Councilmen Cunningham and Millmore were busy today scrutinizing bills, petitions, and other routine business to come before the meeting. The council has not in adjourned session almost daily and promptly disposed of a large amount of business. Much of this was incident to the change in the form of city government.

The council, at its meeting Saturday afternoon, directed the superintendent of streets to widen the approach to the Monterey bridge, to put in working order the stone crushing plant at the city quarry, and to buy grass seed for the use of the men at Riverview park. The Wisconsin Telephone company was directed to install a wall telephone in the office of Councilman Millmore.

WEATHER FORECAST IS NOT PROMISING NOW

(Copyrighted 1912 by W. T. Foster.)
Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent April 28 to May 2, warm wave 27 to May 1, cool wave 30 to May 4. The period covered by this disturbance is expected to be warmer than usual with less than usual rain. Where there is sufficient moisture already in the soil excellent crop weather will prevail but where the moisture is already deficient the storm wave will bring a drought scare. A large part of the continent has sufficient moisture at this time.

Next disturbance will reach Pacific coast about May 2, cross Pacific slope by close of 3, great central valleys 4 to 6, eastern sections 7. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about May 2, great central valleys 4, eastern sections 6. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about May 5, great central valleys 7, eastern sections 9.

This disturbance will bring the climax, the top wave, the apex, the crest of hot weather and its following cool wave will bring a titanic temperature wave downward. But, while a great drop in temperature will occur, frosts are not expected and much south of the usual frost line. Rainfall will continue below the usual amount and unseasonable as to drought in some sections will increase.

Second disturbance of May will reach Pacific coast about May 7, cross Pacific slope by close of 8, great central valleys 9 to 11, eastern sections 12. Warm wave will cross Pacific slope about May 7, great central valleys 9, eastern sections 11. Cool wave will cross Pacific slope about May 10, great central valleys 12, eastern sections 11.

The warm wave of this disturbance will not go as high as the preceding one but the cool wave and frosts will go much further south than usual. Some rains will accompany the disturbance and some of the dry places will be partially relieved. The drought scare will also be partially relieved.

Following this disturbance a week of severe storms is expected and the remainder of May will average unusually cool. Rainfall will gradually increase along latitude 38 to 40 and on coast sections of the Gulf of Mexico.

From May 28 to June 2 will be a sunspot period the spots, both bright and dark appearing near the central parts of the sun and drifting westward or to the right. Comets and other severe storms are expected on many parts of the earth and from May 30 to June 1, an electrical disturbance is expected that will interfere with telegraph, telephone, and wireless messages.

Three or four months ago to these bulletins informed the public that winter grain would be much damaged by severe winter weather and that the extent of the damage would not be realized till the last part of April. That kind of information is very valuable to grain dealers, to millers who must buy for consumption grain long in advance and particularly to those who must buy for consumption.

Many valuable things about future weather and its effects may be known wherever long records of daily temperatures, rainfall, storms, frosts, cold waves, etc., have been recorded and preserved. But the United States authorities are doing nothing to put the old records into usable shapes. They do not seem to know the value of those old records nor care for them. Our congressmen should look into this matter.

SEES ADVANTAGE IN COLLEGE TRAINING
Lawrence College Professor Shows Dollars and Cents Value of Education, in Address at High School.

"The value of a college education as a means of greater preparation and work, than is given in a high school course" was the subject of an address delivered to the students of the high school this morning by Professor Vaughn of Lawrence college.

Professor Vaughn stated that upon graduation from a high school a person was not competent of gaining more than a mere livelihood for himself and that success was almost an impossibility. Still, he said that only one out of every seven hundred obtain a college education. The question naturally arises, what becomes of the six hundred and ninety-nine who haven't the valuable asset, a college education? The answer is plain. Upon leaving high school they were taken with the money fever. They get a job paying good wages but they are failures, for

Few realize that every day spent in gaining a college education is equivalent to thirteen dollars and seventy-five cents. The statistics show that the average uneducated man earns a dollar and a half a day, equivalent to four hundred and fifty dollars a year.

On the other side, the high school and college educated man averages an earning of one thousand dollars a year, or five hundred and fifty dollars more than the uneducated man. The average working period in life is forty years. And so in life from a monetary basis the college-bred man earns $22,000 more than the common laborer in a year. Dividing this by the number of days spent in obtaining this education, and to the average educated man they are valued at $13.75 a day.

"You ask what is the difference. Let me say that one man works with his hands and the other with his brains."
"But I want to enter the political or commercial arena. You may hear them say. Statistics show that seventy-five percent of the congressmen are college-bred men; of the senators sixty per cent are college-bred; of the chief justices eighty-seven per cent are college men. Of all the great, successful and distinguished men of today the majority are college-bred men who by their superior mental development and training have forced the six hundred and ninety-nine opposing them with common education to submit to them. And in view of this, is a college education valuable?"

Tends to Humility.
The more a man thinks about himself—if he thinks clearly—the more humble he will become. Conceit is a sign of confused perceptions, and entire inability to see the true proportions of things. "Know thyself" is really a gate to the first beatitude—"Blessed are the poor in spirit."

Unnecessary Lines on the Face.
Long lines across the brow, the result of elevating the eyebrows to assist in conversation, is a common mistake against which too much cannot be said. These seams continue to grow deeper with each year, until they become fixed and dark, carrying with them the appearance of age and anxiety. By all means massage them with a cold cream, using a rotary movement, and then practice talking minus the eyebrow accompaniment before your mirror, say a half hour at a time. Persistence in this treatment will bring about its abandonment. Be careful not to draw the eyes into unnatural lines when laughing.

Only a Few.
Only a few of the people who are not satisfied with the world are doing anything to make it better.

The Flash of Genius.
A man should learn to detect and watch that gleam of light which flashes across his mind from within more than the luster of the firmament of birds and eagles. Yet he dismisses without notice his thought, because it is his. In every work of genius we recognize our own rejected thoughts, they come back to us with a certain alienated majesty.—Emerson.

"Mutt and Jeff" Presented Before Good-Sized Audiences at Matinee and Evening Performance.

As a laughing farce, the three-act musical comedy, "Mutt and Jeff," presented at the Myers theater Saturday afternoon and evening, is a success, but as a musical comedy, the play does not quite come up to the requirements. The show is based largely on the antics of the two leading characters, "Mr. A. last are James Boutelle, Edgerton, first; Morton Lee, Stoughton, second; Archie McDonald, Whitewater, third. Winners in the declamatory contest are Margaret Melrose, Stoughton; first; Esther Kraus, Jefferson, second; Bernadine Chard, Edgerton, third. Music was furnished by the high school orchestra and the girls' glee club.

Following the contest a social dance in Academy hall was held in which about eighty couples participated, music being furnished by the Union Club orchestra.

HOW JESUS PREACHED TO SPIRITS IN PRISON

Who They Are and the Cause of Their Imprisonment.

Pastor Russell Explodes the Theory That Jesus Preached to Dead Humans in Prison—Fate of the Dead of the Titanic Disaster Pointed Out From Scriptures.

(PASTOR RUSSELL)

Atlanta, Ga., April 18.—While we were with the survivors of the "Titanic" disaster, let us thank God that a better understanding of the Bible enables us to sorrow not hopelessly. Not long ago, misguided by our creeds of the Dark Ages, we would have asked, "Were any of the 1500 who perished at sea?" and assured that very few of them would have claimed to be saints, we would have concluded that all the remainder plunged down to a Catholic purgatory of terror, or worse, to a Protestant hell of eternal torture.

Even the idea of their great glory and happiness would not have altered the decision which would have hung on the question, "Did they confess Jesus in word and deed?" we would have asked, "Were they church members?" This is the same argument used respecting the 60,000 heathen who die every day in the year, "going down into Christless graves," the "London Missionary Society" truly says, but means and is understood to mean into Christless eternal torture.

Now, how different! Now we see that a faithful, elect Church is being selected during this Age; that in the next Age they will with Jesus may assist, bless, uplift all the non-elect to an earthly salvation to human perfection, in the new Paradise—Earth—where Messiah's Kingdom will usher in. Thus, only the scintilla which will ever be annihilated.

But our old errors die hard; because we have twisted the Bible to fit them. For instance, let us consider St. Peter's words:—"Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust, that He might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened in the spirit, by which (two experiences—death and resurrection) He preached unto the spirits in prison" (1 Peter iii, 18, 19).

This text has been made the basis for some very peculiar presentations. The difficulty in every case seems to be the failure to remember that the Bible always and everywhere teaches that the dead are really dead, that they will know nothing until the resurrection. Therefore, it would be impossible to preach to the dead humans.

Spirits Once Disobedient.
St. Peter tells us the time of the disobedience of these spirits—"In the days of Noah, while the ark was preparing."

Turning to Genesis vi, 1-5, we find there the cause of the disobedience of these angels who for a time had been permitted to see what they could do for the uplift of humanity, or, rather, permitted to demonstrate that the downward tendency of sin is incurable except in the manner which God has already arranged for through Messiah and His reign of 1,000 years.

The particular sin of these angels was that when they were granted the privilege of materializing—of taking human bodies—for the sake of helping and instructing mankind—they misused this power and took to themselves wives.

The offspring of this improper union were "giants," both physically and mentally superior to the fallen human family—"men of renown." The race thus in several centuries became so corrupt that apparently only Noah and his family were left uncontaminated.

It was then and there that God imprisoned these spirits ("angels," who kept not their first estate"), and are therefore called fallen angels, devils, demons. They were not imprisoned in some far-off world called hell, nor are they engaged there in wicked fires.

The record is that God cast them down, that they might not longer associate with the holy angels, but must be reserved in tarantula—our earth's atmosphere.—Jude 6; 1 Peter ii, 4, 5.

When imprisoned or cut off from the privilege of materialization, many of the fallen spirits continued their active opposition to God, like Satan, and are spoken of as his angels.

How Jesus Preached in Death.
Here arises another question: If Jesus really died, as the Scriptures declare: If "He poured out His soul unto death" and "made His soul an offering for sin," and His soul was not raised from the dead until the third day after His crucifixion, how could He in the meantime preach to spirits in prison, or to anybody else? We reply that He could preach in the same way that the Apostle refers to, saying, "Abel, being dead, yet speaketh" (Hebrews xi, 4).

But when they perceived His resurrection on the third day to glory, honor and immortality ("far above angels, principalities and powers"), His sermon to them was complete, namely, that "the wages of sin is death," but "the gift of God is eternal life" (Romans vi, 23). And as they realized thus the Power of God and the Love of God for His human creatures, the Apostle's words imply that this constituted to them a message of hope.

play is really concerned with the adventures of these two men, who, as soldiers of fortune, to a South American republic in search of fame and fortune, but at times the main plot is subordinated to the subplots for the introduction of the musical numbers. The comedy of Mutt and Jeff is the real factor in the popularity of the play. Of the musical numbers, the most noteworthy was "Just a Little Smile," sung by Harry Hoyt and the Barnell. Miss Barnell also sang several other pretty songs, the value of the songs being enhanced by Miss Barnell's voice, rather than their own musical value. Robert Elliott, who took the role of Antonio Barco, Nick, a revolutionary leader, also displayed talent as a singer. None of the parts of the musical score might be called "catchy," however, and the company was hampered in its work by the absence of some of the members of the chorus, who left the company Saturday, as this was the last stand of the season. The production was attended by good-sized audiences at both the matinee and the evening performances.

"HYPNOTIZED MAN" ATTRACTS CONSIDERABLE ATTENTION.

Has Been Lying Asleep in the Putnam Store Window Since Saturday Evening.

One of the features of the Mackie, the hypnotic condition that appear at the Myers theater this week, was the putting to sleep on Saturday night, by hypnotic suggestion over the telephone of a "subject" in the store window of Putnam's store. The affair has attracted considerable attention as it was done by a long distance message and the man has apparently been sleeping since that time. He will be awakened this evening during the performance at the Myers theater.

SOLEMN SERVICES
FOR DR. PEARSONS

Wife's Pall Bearers Will Carry His Body and Same Hymns Will be Sung at Funeral
Tuesday.

Chicago, April 29.—Last solemn services over the remains of Dr. D. K. Pearsons the aged Hinsdale philanthropist who passed away Saturday morning will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Hinsdale Congregational church. The same pallbearers who officiated at his wife's funeral six years ago will officiate and the same hymns sung at that time, "Lead Kindly Light," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Rock of Ages," will be rendered. The pallbearers will be those from Hinsdale: Dr. J. P. Haskett, Walter P. Clark, J. H. P. Merrill, C. H. Crosswetter, A. F. Hiebler and D. H. Preston; the first four of those were pallbearers at the burial of Mrs. Pearsons. The two from Chicago are Dr. Simeon Gilbert and Anna Bacon.

Daniel K. Pearsons, one of the greatest western philanthropists and a firm believer in the wisdom of every rich man becoming his own administrator and executor, was born in Bradford, Vermont, April 14, 1829, descended on both sides from Scotch-Irish revolutionary ancestors. On his mother's side he was a descendant of the Israel Putnam family. He received a good education, and at the age of sixteen years, enabled him to become a school teacher. He followed that occupation for five winters and, at the age of twenty-one years, entered Dartmouth college, where he remained two years.

Following this he pursued a course of medical study at Woodstock and after graduating moved to Chicopee, Mass., where he engaged in the practice of medicine. There he married Miss Marietta Chapin and continued to save $5,000, with which capital he went West in 1857. For a while he lived in Ogle county, Illinois, where he had purchased a large farm, and then went to Janesville, Wis., to practice medicine again. That the life of a doctor did not appeal to him and he decided to seek a larger field for his energy and ambition.

Fortune in Real Estate.

He went to Chicago and engaged in the real estate and money-lending business. He handled large tracts of land for corporations and private individuals and sold more than one million acres of land in Illinois alone. In seventeen years he loaned upward of $20,000,000 for capitalists who employed him as their agent. But, in 1877 his own business had assumed such proportions that he was obliged to give it his exclusive attention. A firm believer in the ultimate prosperity of Chicago he bought city property freely during that period of depression following the panic of 1873 and carried it until the rise in values netted him an enormous profit on his original investment.

When the financial condition of Chicago was at the lowest ebb, Dr. Pearsons rendered valuable services to the city, by actually saving the credit and reputation for honor of the city. Elected chairman of the Finance Committee, Dr. Pearsons was appointed chairman of the Finance Committee. He found the city treasury empty, depleted by acts of great extravagance. The city's indebtedness was greatly in excess of the constitutional limit and to meet the demands upon it the city had issued certificates, the legality of which was disputed in the courts. Many of these certificates had been taken by eastern bankers and other capitalists who became alarmed at the situation.

Work For Chicago.

In this emergency Dr. Pearsons went to New York to confer with the financial powers on Wall street. His earnest manner and straightforward course produced a good effect. He had come, officially as a member of his city's common council and privately as a capitalist and man of honor, to assure them that Chicago meant to pay its debts. He pledged his individual word and that of his city that, no matter who might be in power, and no matter how the courts might decide, Chicago was sure to meet its obligations of indebtedness, principle and interest, promptly on time, dollar for dollar.

He succeeded in allaying the fears of the eastern financiers, and returned home with the knowledge that Chicago's credit was fully restored. It may be added that, although the courts decided that the much discussed certificates were practically only waste paper, the city never repudiated them, but, as Dr. Pearsons had pledged his word would be the case, all were paid in full.

Benefactor to Colleges.

In 1877 Dr. Pearsons retired from active business and announced his intention to devote the rest of his days to giving away his wealth, acquired by hard work and unusual shrewdness, so that it would do the most good.

He knew how to make money, he said on one occasion, "is one science; to know what to do with it when acquired, is another science, and the latter should be carefully studied by the possessor of wealth before he divides his property. For a man on his debtful to scatter his fortune in a haphazard, good-for-nothing way to a dozen objects of very different merit, is unbecomingly. All this should be done with a clear brain, after careful thought and in the vigor of his own best years."

Unlike many other men of wealth he practiced what he preached and during the years following his retirement from business he distributed more than five million dollars among more than twenty-five small colleges, mostly located in the West, hospitals and a few seminaries, the latter notwithstanding the fact that Dr. Pearsons did not belong to any church. He was among the founders of the Vermont society of Illinois and one of its first presidents. He also was an active member of the Chicago Historical society and a warm friend of every worthy cause.

British Plan an Expedition From Aden
Against Arabian Chief Who Looted Wrecked Steamer.

London, April 29.—An expedition will be dispatched shortly from Aden to punish the Sultan of Socotra unless loot taken from the British steamship Kunda, which was wrecked on the island of Socotra, is restored and an apology given.

The punitive expedition will consist of a cruiser of the East Indian squadron and the steamship Dalhousie, which will convey a company of native infantry from the Aden garrison. The command of the party will be given to Major General Sir J. A. Bell, political resident at Aden.

The Kunda, bound from Dunder to Singapore, went ashore in November and one of the crew was compelled to travel 200 miles in an open boat for assistance. The lives of the crew were threatened and the vessel was looted by the natives. Subsequently the crew was rescued by a Russian ship and landed at Singapore.

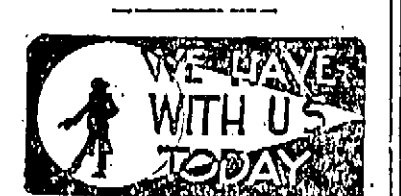

Socotra is an island of the Indian Ocean lying near the entrance of the Gulf of Aden. It is eighty miles long and contains 1,380 square miles. Though virtually part of an Arab sultanate, Socotra is under British protection, constituting a dependency of Aden.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat
BY RUTH CAMERON

IT IS a well recognized fact that, in respect to almost all his possessions and customs, the average person's tastes are subject to the fluctuations of fashion. There are constantly changing styles in everything about us, in our furniture and our houses, our jewelry and our summer resorts, our flowers and our automobiles, our food and our diet. But did it ever occur to you that there are even styles in words?

You have probably observed that a certain shade of brown and a bright red, called "hunter's pink," are the new colors for the spring. Now, of course, the red does not mean that there are new colors for the spring that they did not exist. It simply means that we will have a run on them this season. In just the same way we have runs on words. Take the word "efficiency," for instance. Prior to the last two years, how often would the average person have run across that word? Perhaps half a dozen times a year. And today, anyone who reads or talks much has a good chance of meeting it as many times a week. "Efficiency in business," "efficiency in school organization," "efficiency in the church," "mental efficiency," "physical efficiency,"—phrases like these are continually assailing his eyes or ears.

Again, take the word "strenuous." Fifteen years ago would your correspondent ever have thought of writing to you that she had had a strenuous week? No, she would probably have said that she had had a very busy week. The word "strenuous" in those days would have sounded very strange to you. But two or three years ago—I do not say today because the vogue of "strenuous" is already beginning to pass—this was the natural word to express such a condition.

"Negligible" is a word which has come into common use during the last five years. I had a striking proof of this fact when, after having used the word and having been asked its meaning, I turned to the dictionary to support my definition and did not find the word at all. It is only to be found in a very recent edition of the dictionary. In this respect, of course, it is different from the other words cited, in that they were catalogued, but not commonly used.

Some other words which have been suggested to me as words which are, or have been, in vogue are "charm"—in the sense of attractiveness—"condemnation"—I can't think of a wonderful day—"unique" and "conservation." "Condemnation," I am told, is the very latest thing in words. Everywhere you hear such expressions as "The pupil must condemn his faculties." It bids fair to be a successor in popularity to "efficiency."

In the case of many of these words, however, some movement or some event has brought them into prominence. "Efficiency" of course, comes from the "efficiency engineer" movement; "conservation," from the western conservation talk; and "strenuous," well, I'm quite sure I don't need to mention the source of that word's prominence. Other words seem to spring into popularity for no apparent reason, much in the inexplicable manner in which styles in other things appear.

Thus, even in words, we are all bewildered and follow meekly after each other; so even in words we must have change of style, and the only thing which is always in fashion is change of fashion.

HAVE YOU THE RIGHT TO BE MARRIED?

BY DOROTHY DAVIS

DEAN SUMMER, Chicago, "Henceforth no marriage ceremony will be solemnized in this church unless the contracting parties bring a certificate of good health."

Splendid. But—how far will a demand of this kind make for a finer race? If the double code of morals exists?

The man was begging the woman he loved to marry him. He told her his admirer for enough to tell her square with her as he would be with a man.

"Do you come to me as clean morally as I do to you?" the woman asked.

"No," he answered. "All men believe in the double code, all 'red-blooded' men."

"Then you don't think the clear morning torrent as forceful as the sluggish river? It makes the machine go round, you know?"

"Ah, but it's the big, dirty stream that carries the rich-laden boats to sea," he said.

"All right, then," cried the woman, quickly. "It's no choice but the muddy river, no for one of the big boats."

Only an unclean man, no matter how far she sought. Yet the very man who enlightened her would exclaim about "our fine American girls selling themselves" if she forsook him for wealth.

And he would be right. For one degradation does not excuse another. If you intend to marry you must look this question squarely in the face. There is a cure for all this.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING

One Advantage of Moving—Fancy Sandwiches—A Breakfast Idea and a Salad.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

Moving is usually done under the impression that better location is being secured although in some cases there is an enforced reducing of expenses or a removal on account of business that is not altogether pleasing. Many a woman finds moving a blessing in disguise for the reason that she gets rid of much accumulated stuff that otherwise would occupy shelf and closet year after year. There are housekeepers who never clean house thoroughly except when they move.

Now it is not necessary to move in order to rid the house of trash or get it clean. Little girls "make believe" lots of things and the housewife can get herself into the house of mind that goes with preparing to move who can clear out and clean up just as well as if she expected the moving van.

What to throw away is no simple question in many cases and it is a real hardship for some women to give or throw away anything of the least value. Some things we must keep for sentimental sake, and valuable possessions if so fortunate as to own any, but things not of present use and of no particular value at any time should be cremated or cast into the trash barrel.

Hambugg sandwiches are a convenient way of getting rid of suddenly worthless things and old clothes are always sought for by charitable societies and the Salvation Army. Sometimes it is wise in the spring to save men's winter clothes, tied securely in a bag with plenty of moth balls, until early winter when there high-handed "red-blood" belief. Men and women who really think do not believe in any double code. But the trouble is to get them to think.

Yes, that "woman" was intentional. For how many mothers of your acquaintance feel the same sorrow the same unforfeited anger if their sons "sow a few wild oats" that they do if their daughters "go wrong?"

Mothers pay a prodigious son's debts. They allow him to sit by his father, escort her, fight for her. They lavish on him every endearment.

Why? By what process of reasoning do they come to the belief that one child has "red blood" while the other has some other kind? Don't they just take the easiest way?

O. Henry told the little story of the woman, who as a little girl went into the streets because her father was "too tired to play with her." Many have told it. But who bothers about what happens to the little boy whose father and mother will not play with him?

What the boys need is more stress on their "gray matter" and less on their "red blood." Their brains and bodies are as closely connected as a girl's. It is fair not to give them a chance to develop as much strength of character as their sisters?

There is no sex in cleanliness. Men descend to types lower than the Simian ape from which they say they descended. Women make sewers of their bodies. Yet what person with any mind will not turn from it all with horror when once the emetic of disgust is awakened by a little real thought?

will be perhaps as in the past winter, a urgent call for clothes by different charities or by individuals.

Kitchen utensils are too cheap to make it economy to work with anything not in good order and top shelves in cupboards should be freed from all surplusage of dorellets.

Pastery sandwiches can be made of trimmings. Roll thick pastry, cut and cut in two pieces. Put onion on a baking sheet and spread with jam. Lay on the other half and press the edges all round in order that the filling will not run out while baking.

Stir with a knife into strips one and one-half inches wide and two or three inches long. Press the knife nearly through to the pan. Bake until almost done then take the pan out of the oven and quickly brush over with an egg beaten light but not stiff and sift powdered sugar over. Set back in the oven to finish baking and color the sugar. The sandwiches will come apart easily if pressed with a sharp knife where they are scored.

Not every one knows that walnuts are much better for a salad if cooked in boiling water long enough to blanch. Slip the skins off and drop again into boiling water to which is added a bit of bay leaf, a clove or two and a few pepper corns.

After fifteen minutes the meats should be tender but not broken. Mix one cup of the nut meats with one cup of cold boiled chicken cut three and arrange in spoonfuls on lettuce leaves set in a border round the salad platter. Put a spoonful of mayonnaise on each.

Now potatoes are coming into the market; try some baked with cream and bacon. Put a dozen very thin slices of bacon into a pan, or in a bacon broiler, and set in the oven until it is clear and begins to crisp. Put the bacon on a well warmed platter and to the fat in the pan add three or four tablespoons of flour and stir two or three minutes being careful that it does not burn. Now add one and one-half cups of hot milk and cook three minutes. Turn into a hot shallow serving dish and lay the bacon round over the top and serve with the potatoes for breakfast.

The KEEGHEEN
CABINET

THE world which clouds thy soul with doubt Is but a vapor inside out. It's when we view these shadows and ends, We know not what the whole inside ends. So, when on earth, things look but odd, They're working out, some scheme of God. What now seem random strokes, will there In order and design appear. Then shall we praise what here we spurned. For then the carpet shall be turned.

CHAFING DISH RECIPES.

The possession of a chafing dish and the knowledge to use it is a source of great satisfaction.

Wrap oysters in strips of bacon, season and fry in the hot blazer. The bacon should be skowered with toothpicks.

Oyster Roast.—Put a tablespoonful of butter into a chafing dish, add a pint of oysters and juice. Season with salt and pepper. Cover and cook two minutes. Serve hot on buttered toast. Moistened with the oyster juice.

Chicken Hollandaise.—Cook two cups of cold cooked chicken cut fine in a fourth of a cup of butter five minutes. Add half a teaspoon of salt, a few grains of pepper and two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. When thoroughly blended add a third of a cup of milk and two eggs. Stir until thick. Serve with crackers or toast.

Rinkum Ditty.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a chafing dish; add two cups of cheese cut fine. When melted add one cup of tomato, soda, salt and pepper a pinch, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce and one egg beaten and stirred in at the last. Serve on hot crackers.

Mexican Jamb.—Cut up a small onion and cook in a little butter until brown. Add a can of tomatoes, a seasoning of salt and cayenne. Cook until the tomato is smooth. Add two eggs well beaten and serve on toast.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE

The Indiana suffragists have opened their campaign with marked determination and earnestness. All branches of the organization in the state will combine on a uniform plan of procedure and they hope to enlist the aid of a number of the other social and reform organizations within the state. Before the meeting of the next Indiana legislature, the suffragists expect to have secured several hundred thousand signatures to petitions which are now being circulated throughout the state, asking the legislature to take such steps as may be necessary to secure the adoption of a constitutional amendment granting equal suffrage to women. The Indiana suffragists, indeed the equal suffragists throughout the country, are very much gratified over the endorsement which the movement has received from Ex-Vice President Fairbanks. He delivered an address recently at a suffrage convention held in Indianapolis, in which he expressed his unqualified approval of the cause. He is known to be conservative in his views, but held high positions in councils of both state and the nation, and the suffragists feel that his endorsement will command attention everywhere, and will certainly be of very material assistance in the Indiana contest.

The New Hampshire "Mens League for Equal Suffrage" made its appearance last week. The first club organized at Manchester and started with a membership exceeding one thousand. The organization will be extended over the state and has for its chief immediate purpose the collection of a campaign fund, and the distribution of literature. New York and Massachusetts suffragists have expressed their intention of contributing all possible weight to the New Hampshire campaign. They sent some of their best talent into the state and will further support the cause and will further support the movement through contributions of money and campaign literature. The feeling is general among Eastern suffragists, that they have the golden opportunity in the lifetime of the movement in the lifetime of the state. With victory in one of these states, they think it would give a tremendous impetus to the cause throughout the east and would be rapidly followed by victory in other states. The Ohio suffragists announced that within the next few weeks their campaign plans will have been perfected to an extent that will enable them to make a house to house canvass in all of the rural districts of Ohio. This, together with the system of operation laid out for cities will, they say, enable them to canvass practically every voter in the state.

The Arkansas suffragists who are conducting the campaign there, say that they have secured already practically enough signatures to insure a vote on the question of a constitutional amendment this fall. The petitions all were distributed over the state which were distributed over the state which were distributed over the state.

The National Woman Suffrage Congress which recently concluded its session at Berlin, is said to have been the most notable ever known. Prior to 1908, the women of Germany were prohibited by law from participating in any political meeting of any character except in the case of a referendum, but with the repeal of the law that year the pro-suffrage party which previously could not maintain an organization except in four republics, began a system of organization which is rapidly extending throughout the empire. It is the general impression there, however, that municipal suffrage is all that will likely be conceded to the women of Germany for some time to come.

There is a strong pro-suffrage sentiment manifest in Austria-Hungary and recently 5,000 women paraded the streets of Vienna demanding the suffrage of Vienna the fact that the Austrian laws stringently prohibit women from forming political organizations or participating in public meetings. The Danish Woman Suffrage Society celebrated its fortieth anniversary in holding a short time since, and the Prime Minister of Denmark, Klara, Bernstorn, was the principal speaker on that occasion. In the course of his remarks he expressed his determination to oppose any amendment to the constitution which did not include full suffrage for the women of Denmark. The municipal elections are now being held in Sweden and a number of women are candidates for office in various parts of the country, there being six in Stockholm alone. The Government bill to extend the parliamentary suffrage to women is now being discussed in the Riksdag. It is known that a majority of the members are favorable to the measure, and no doubt is entertained of its passage.

In October of last year, the Irish Women's Franchise League passed a resolution demanding that the Irish Home Rule bill include a clause enfranchising women. This, it is claimed, has proved a serious obstacle in the way of the passage of the Home Rule bill this year. But the latest reports indicate that such a feature will not be incorporated in the bill since the Government bill was accepted by the Irish Nationalist convention at Dublin the 23rd instant.

"Woman's Work is Never Done" It is the faithful woman in the home, who does the cooking, sweeping, dusting, washing and ironing, ambitious to keep her home as neat as a pin, and often having two or three children, who require care and attention, who calls for her sympathy. Overworked, she is the result. Outraged nature asserts itself in time and female troubles appear. Such women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the exact medicine they need when their strength is overtaxed and female weakness and derangement make life a burden. For nearly forty years it has been the standard remedy for such troubles.

Heart and Home Problems
by
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please answer the following questions for us? (1) What will remove freckles? (2) What will take ink out of coats? (3) We are fifteen year old. How long should we wear our dresses? (4) Are we old enough to wear shirtwaists and skirts? (5) We are each five feet, four inches tall. How much should we weigh?

SCHOOL CHILDS.
(1). A solution of one ounce of hydrogen and three or four drops of ammonia will bleach freckles. If this irritates the skin, dilute with a few drops of water. (2). One of more applications of lemon juice, then a thorough boiling will remove ink from washable white material; if the ink stain is fresh, milk will often remove it. (3). Your skirts should come just above the shoe tops. (4). Next tailored waists and skirts are very pretty for girls your age. (5). Your weight should be between one hundred and one hundred and fifteen pounds.

Dear Mrs. Thompson. I am seventeen years of age and have no mother. For three years I have been in love with one who, I am sure, loves me. My father, mistakenly believing my friend to be wayward, positively refuses to allow us to be together. I love my father, and do not wish to disobey him, but as I know he is under false impressions, I am sometimes inclined to do so. Do you consider it my duty to have some understanding with my father? In the past I have been unhappy for having to keep company with a young man of my father's choice, whom I respect, but do not, and shall not love. Am I doing added.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Can you tell me what to do to help a blue gingham dress from fading?
GORGON.
Soak over night in salt water, and water to which turpentine has been added.

His Awful "Break."

The little god of bad breaks is ever seeking victims. He made a young man at a social gathering the other evening blush for a week. The young man had been introduced to a young woman. "Why, I know a lady by the same name in Kansas City," he remarked, "only she's a beautiful girl." The young woman glared at him from the spot, and he was glad of an excuse to leave the gathering.

A Baseball Romance

W. A. PHELON

CHAPTER XXIV.

There isn't much that can be said about certain stretches along the Rio Grande, except that they are undoubtedly those portions of Texas which made a great general declare that if he had that state and the interior regions at his disposal he'd live in hell and rent out Texas. Mesquitos and prickly brush; jungles bisected here and there with thorny trails; habitations almost as scattered and as seldom visible as the stars in the night sky; the Comanche and the Lipan rode abroad in the land—that is the Rio Grande border. It is an ideal country for smugglers, cattle-thieves and revolutionists, just as it was once the happy hunting ground of the most pernicious red men.

Still, it doesn't much matter what the section of the land may be, or what the scenery may amount to. If it is in these United States—and there is a patch of fairly level ground discernable—there will be a ball game in progress any pleasant afternoon, and the crack of the bat will rouse the echoes where once the Indian war-whoop scared the birds. Hence it can hardly be considered startling or even remarkable to find good games in full blast upon the Rio Grande—games which may not be played with big but squarely on the right wrist, disabling him from further baseball doings. That left two vacancies, and the appearance of the boys was a blessing to the common citizens' array.

Brockett and Solano warmed up with real delight when the teams were summoned to the field. They had found friends—a jovial crowd of newspaper men and photographic experts—and the minor officers of the regiment had likewise extended them a warm welcome. The Polo Grounds, as the troopers proudly styled the ball yard, was somewhat humpy in places, and rather diversified with cactus in others, but everybody concerned had seen far worse arenas for the game. Grandstand there was none, but long lines of cracker-boxes, beer cases and brush heaps afforded sitting room, while hundreds of the enthusiastic bugs stood as close to the base lines as they dared. Mexican ranchers, Mexican peons, rurales on short furledges, "luneros" who had sought that region for their health, and soldiers by the hundred—such was the assembly, and it is doubtful if any ball game over was played before a more uproarious crowd.

A college man who was directing things for a moving-picture concern went in as pitcher for the common citizens, and seemed fairly capable. He stopped the cavalry hitless for two innings, pop flies and strikeouts quickly disposing of the warriors. The common citizens were equally helpless with the stick. Brockett and Solano, the newcomers, on whom the common citizens were counting for material batting help, failed in the pinch on their first times up. Brockett raised a foul fly to the fat sergeant, who was catching, and Solano grounded to a farther who was playing short.

In the third inning the troopers began to land on the moving-picture man and two hits were followed by a fumble on the part of a contractors' agent, who was covering second. With the bases full, the moving-picture man put on the steam, struck out the chaplain of the regiment—usually a corking good batter—and made the bugler pop to the first baseman. The next man up was the captain of Company C, a portly gentleman who had struck out on his last previous appearance. He barely grazed the ball and raised a fly that hovered over third.

Solano, settled with eager hands for the catch. Just as the ball landed in his glove, the trooper who was coaching at third bellowed, like a foghorn: "The spider! Look out for the tarantula, boy—look out for the spider!"

With a startled yell Solano sprang plumbly backward. The ball fell with a chugging thud and rolled away. Two runs crossed the platter, and the whole regiment gave vent to wild and woolly howls of glee. Solano, a bright crimson suffusing his olive countenance, said never a word, but Brockett, far out, shrieked at the absurdity of the thing.

After this the tide of battle ebbed and flowed. The common citizens began to hit the distinguished marksman who was pitching, and got back those two runs in the fifth inning. They accumulated two more in the sixth, thanks to a neat drive by Brockett, and Solano got some measure of revenge in the seventh when he caught a liner and stepped on third before a runner could get back. The cavalry rallied in the eighth, but could push in only one man. They turned into the ninth with the score 4 to 3 in favor of the common citizens, and the audience rooting like wild men.

The moving-picture man fed the first batsman a high, fat ball, and it whizzed past first for two bases. A striped disposed of the next man, while the next drew four balls. The chaplain came up, tried to catch the infield napping with a bunt, and was thrown out at first, leaving men on third and second, with two down.

The bugler caught a slow, tuneful curve squarely on the trade-mark, and it scared out over center field.

Brockett ran back, back and kept on traveling. At the very edge of a mosquito clump far behind his position he gathered in the ball and heard a tremendous outburst of applause from the assemblage. He arched the ball back into the infield, started to walk back to the bench—and then something swished through the air, and a loop settled round his shoulders. The lasso was pulled in with rapid hands, and Brockett vanished behind the mesquite clump before he could even give a warning cry.

CHAPTER XXV.

It doesn't take long for a crowd of husky athletes to traverse the distance between the home plate and centerfield. As Brockett disappeared behind the mesquite, half a dozen ball players, with a yell of surprise and rage, dashed across the diamond. It was less than half a minute before they reached the point where the lassoed youngster had last been visible, but all that they found was Brockett, himself, still mixed up with the coils of a larriat, his shirt half-torn off, his waistband of his trousers ripped, and his pockets inside out. His assailants, whoever they might have been, had vanished into the chaparral, and the crackling of the underbrush gave evidence that they were rapidly widening the distance between themselves and the avenging cavalry.

"What was it?" "Who roped you?" "Are you hurt?" the players chorused, as they picked up the rumped but uninjured centerfielder. Brockett, freed from the tangling rope, shook himself, made an effort to readjust his torn clothing, and then sat down on the grass, rocking with laughter.

"I'm not hurt," he explained, between spasms of merriment, "but I

"Your belt is gone!" cried Solano. "Yes, that's the best part of it," gurgled Brockett. "Half an hour before the game, not wishing to lose my packets of letters—everything of any value or any weight—and placed them in the safe at headquarters. The captain of Company F fixed it all up for me. That took two or three pounds and a lot of bulk off my waist, and gave me a chance to work more freely. Whoever lassoed me wanted that belt. They jerked me in among these bushes, hung me on my face, and went through me in less than five seconds' time. And they got the belt, they got the belt, and ran away with it!" Brockett again collapsed with laughter.

"Didn't you see them at all, my boy?" questioned the chaplain.

"No, sir," Brockett replied. "They jerked me in here so fast I had no chance to turn, and then laid me face downward, so that I couldn't see them. They didn't even speak, but robbed me and were gone before I could even roll over and look after them. It was finely done—just the way the wild west melodramas used to have the Mexican villain lasso the heroic cowboy."

"Didn't they get anything besides the belt?" asked Solano.

"Yes, they did," and again Brockett was convulsed. "They got a nice set of non-sensical messages and faked ciphers that I put in four hours constructing on the train. I hope they get rich with their plunder."

An old trooper, a veteran of the plains, had pushed a short distance into the chaparral while this conversation was going on.

"There was three of 'em, sir," he reported to the captain of Company C.

"Two was Mexicans, one a Cheap fellow that didn't amount to much, and the other a vaquero, with new, high-heeled shoes, and a new black velvet jacket. His arm caught on some thorns, sir, and here's a bit of the goods. The third one was a little man—at least, his feet were very small—and he wore regular city shoes. That's all the trail tells, sir. I suppose they had horses the other side of this brush, and are a long ways from here, by now."

Six troopers rode out, beating the chaparral, but with little hope of overtaking the lasso-thrivers. The triumphant common citizens and the defeated cavalry returned to camp, exchanging much persiflage, and mapping out the preliminaries for the third game of the series. Brockett and Solano, assigned to a comfortable tent, started a debate as to the identity of their latest adversary.

"The fact that he was a small man, leaving a small track," said Solano, "seems to indicate that our Japanese friend swam out of the North river. Doesn't it look that way?"

"It surely doesn't," asserted Brockett. "Still, the German baron may have a few small men as his confederates. That would be possible, wouldn't it?"

"The baron is still locked up at Little Rock," objected Solano. "He would have considerable difficulty in directing any operations from the cell where we last saw him. I can't see anyone in this but the gentle Jap. Can you?"

"WRONG EATING"

Overeating is not so often a factor in nervousness as wrong eating, says the author of the "Preston Papers," in "Life and Health." While the majority of physicians agree that the American people eat too much, especially too much flesh meat, there are many, especially English physicians, who hold that underfeeding is common. But it is probably true that wrong eating otherwise is more common. Many do not realize the serious consequences of hurried eating—the American "quick lunch"—an abomination—or of the excessive mixing of incompatible foods, which has grown with the development of horticulture and transportation till its effects have become so serious as to require earnest and vigorous protest.

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

CHICAGO'S FIRST GREAT CONVENTION.

By A. W. MACY.

The river and harbor bill passed by congress in 1848 was vetoed by President Polk, chiefly on the ground of economy. This veto stirred up a great commotion all over the country, especially throughout the northwest; and a "harbor and river convention" was called to meet at Chicago in July, 1847. It was a great gathering, attended by several thousand delegates. Indiana alone sent 223, and Illinois more than 1,000. Among the delegates afterward prominent in national affairs were Horace Greeley, Thomas Corwin, Schuyler Colfax and Abraham Lincoln. Strong resolutions were adopted favoring internal improvements, especially those relating to transportation by water. It was the first convention of national importance ever held at Chicago, and for the first time the eyes of the whole country were turned toward that city. Some one has said this convention was the starting point of Chicago's wonderful prosperity. The president of the convention was Edward Bates of Missouri. In his opening address he alluded to railroads, remarking that he had never yet seen one. Fourteen years later he traveled by rail to Washington, to become Lincoln's attorney-general.

No More Constipation --WHEE!

It's Me for Olive Tablets!

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

No crying is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated tablets.

They cause the bowels and liver to act normal. They never force them to unnatural action.

It is easy to compel bowel and liver activity for a time with calomel and nuxy, alcoholics, gripping cathartics, and the real cause of the trouble is often not even touched.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are no easy to take that children do not regard them as "medicine" at all.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Olive Tablets at bedtime. They're perfectly harmless.

Thousands take one every night just to keep right. Try them.

"Every little Olive Tablet has a big movement all its own."

You Can Make Your Farm Pay 6% on $1000 Per Acre Value

There is one piece of ground on Frank Mann's farm, near Gilman, Ill., that for seven years produced an average of 5 tons of alfalfa per acre. The next year it produced 21 tons of silage per acre, the next 115 bushels of corn, then 88 1/2 bushels of oats, and last year 52 1/2 bushels of wheat. The average gross return each year for these eleven years was more than $80 per acre. Making a most liberal allowance for all the labor and other expense of growing the crops, there is still enough net profit to pay 6 per cent interest on a valuation of $1,000 per acre. Land is worth as much money as the crops will pay interest on.
